Fears for Domestic Programs

Dr. King to Lead Drive Against Fund Rollback

By Robert E. Baker
Washington Post Staff Writer

ATLANTA, Dec. 16—The Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. said today he will lead an appeal to President Johnson not to cut domestic programs because of the increasing cost of war.

"If the President feels that a rollback on the domestic front is necessary," said Dr. King in an interview, "then we will have no alternative but to use our lobbying and protest activity to get Congress to reverse it."

The Nobel Peace Prize winner also predicted that a cutback would drive a large segment of the civil rights movement into the peace movement.

His statements reflected the concern of other rights leaders that programs vital to Negroes would become casualties of the escalating Vietnam war. A similar note was struck today in a New York speech by Sen Robert F. Kennedy (D-N.Y.)

Kennedy said that concentration on the war in Vietnam eventually could cause so severe a neglect of domestic problems that "no war will be worth fighting."

Recently Administration officials had indicated that domestic budgets—including war-on-poverty programs—must be held down because of an impending boost, estimated at $10 billion, in the Defense Department budget because of the war in Vietnam.

"If this materializes," said Dr. King at his Southern Christian Leadership Conference headquarters here, "it will be a tragic and terrible development."

"But it comes as no surprise. I expected it all along. Where your heart is, there is where your money is."

In recent months, Dr. King has been telling Negroes that they must make full use of the opportunities now open to them. But the Nation must also develop massive action programs for full employment, public works and training, he has said.

In a speech yesterday to the Hungry Club of Atlanta, a bi-racial luncheon club, he said: "It is a cruel jest to tell a bootless man to lift himself up by his own boot straps."

He called the Federal anti-poverty program "a marvelous good faith start."

In today's interview, Dr. King said a cutback or hold-the-line policy would dash the hopes of Negroes, both in the North and South, and build a dangerous situation.

The entire civil rights coalition "must take the whole matter to the President before the Congress convenes in January," he said.

Last August, Dr. King entered the foreign policy field when he said he intended to write President Ho Chi Minh of North Vietnam and the leaders of South Vietnam, Russia and the United States in an effort to move the war to the conference table.

He was widely criticized for the action, including criticisms from supporters who saw a danger in mixing the civil rights and peace movements. Called by Johnson President Johnson phoned him at that time, said they were agreed on civil rights and asked why Dr. King couldn't agree with him on Vietnam.

Dr. King never sent the letter. He has not followed through on the peace movement because of his deference to friendly critics, his distrust of what he sees as "irresponsible elements" in a peace movement and because, he said, the civil rights movement "has neither the resources nor the energy."

But he said in his interview today, that the issues of peace and civil rights are "inextricably bound together." A rollback in domestic programs would drive the civil rights movement into the peace movement, he said.

"Our democracy's strongest battle against communism is to bridge the gaps in our society, for it is upon these gaps that communism feeds," he said.

On November 29, 1965

[REDACTED]

advised that Mrs. Martin Luther King, on November 28, 1965, spoke at the New Bethel Baptist Church, Linwood and Philadelphia, Detroit, Michigan.

"The Detroit Free Press", a Detroit daily metropolitan newspaper, in its November 29, 1965, edition, on Page 3, Section A, contained an article captioned, "Viet Policy Raked Mrs. King: Peace Warrior". This article, in part, stated, Mrs. King, wife of Martin Luther King, Jr., indicated that she and the civil rights movement may play an increasingly active role in the peace movement. Mrs. King said that she is not sure some American policymakers want a negotiated end to the war in Vietnam.

"I think there are people (in the government) who are sincere in feeling we can win the war with military might. I'm not sure they want it to end in any other way."

The article goes on to state that her appearance here followed her participation Saturday, November 27, 1965, in the March in Washington of 25,000 persons protesting American policy in Vietnam. Mrs. King was quoted as saying, "I was very sympathetic to the march and I share the goals of the peace groups."

Mrs. King further mentions in this article that she is involved in Women's Peace Movements. She stated that her husband's Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) is not yet ready to expand into the peace movement but that a large percentage of the SCLC membership supports it.

"The civil rights movement and the peace movement must work together ultimately, because peace and civil rights are part of the same problem."

Mr. J. Edgar Hoover, F.B.I. Chief,
Washington, D.C.

Dear Sir: Today in the Evansville Courier and Press, I read your "Civil Disregard Of Law Blasted" When Rev. Martin Luther King was supposed to have made a statement according to the paper it didnt seem to suprise me. I realize that his type has followers and they have caused our Country some trouble. I do believe in our law enforcement officers and I do believe that King and his kind can be kept under controll.

100 -106670

According to the papers and news it was reported I believe that the president of the United States, also made a remark about some part of some law that he did not aim to abide by it. a person at the head of our Government makes such a statement then I am at a loss to know whats going to happen.

I feel sure that you are a most busy man but I sure wish that you could find time some way at least weekly to have some article in the Sunday paper (I believe that more people read the Sunday paper than any other paper) and keep hammering away at more of the same type article as was todays article

Thank you and I do hope that the trouble we have at home here can behelped in some way in the near future and I do believe that your line of that will win one of these days.

Yours truly,

DR. KING IS WRITING COLUMN FOR PAPERS

About 50 newspapers from coast to coast will this week begin to carry a weekly column by the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Negro civil rights leader.

The column, entitled "My Dream," will average 400 words. It is being syndicated by the 46-year-old Associated Negro Press of New York. Its subject matter, according to the A.N.P. director, Alfred Duckett, will be anything that interests Dr. King.

The first four titles are "Great Expectations," "The North: Myth of the Promised Land" in two parts, and "Peace—God's Business and Man's."

The original target date for the column was last Aug. 15

but was delayed because of Dr. King's busy schedule.

Among the newspapers that will carry the column are The Amsterdam News in New York, The Chicago Daily Defender, The Norfolk (Va.) Journal and Guide, The Atlanta Daily World, The Pittsburgh Courier chain, The Los Angeles Sentinel and The San Francisco Sun Reporter. All are Negro papers.

The rates for the column range from $3 to $10 a week depending on the paper's circulation.

SECURITY MATTER - C

[REDACTED] advised the Chicago Office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) on November 19, 1965, that Martin Luther King, Jr., traveling with Reverend Andrew Young, had arrived in Chicago at 9:54 a.m., November 19, 1965, from Detroit, Michigan. King and Young had arrived by American Air Lines Flight 307, from Detroit, Michigan, and [REDACTED] advised that he had determined that King had reservations to depart from Chicago at 8:00 a.m., November 20, 1965, via Northwest Air Lines Flight 700, en route to Atlanta, Georgia.

[REDACTED] advised the Chicago Office of the FBI on November 19, 1965, that in the late morning hours of November 19, 1965, KING had been present at the Fellowship Baptist Church, 45th and Princeton Avenues, Chicago, where he had addressed some 200 Baptist Ministers gathered for a joint meeting of the Chicago Baptist Ministerial Conference. [REDACTED] stated that King had urged this group to support and assist the activities of the SCLC in Chicago to the extent it was possible for them to do so. [REDACTED] advised that he is aware of no other specific engagements or appearances in Chicago scheduled by King and is aware that King had expressed the desire not to have his visit here on this occasion receive wide publicity in the local press. [REDACTED] stated that King was to stay at the Sheraton Hotel while in Chicago.

The "Chicago Daily News," a Chicago daily newspaper, evening edition of November 19, 1965, contained an article which reflected that Martin Luther King, Jr., was currently in Chicago to address a joint meeting of the Chicago Baptist Ministerial Conference at the Fellowship Church, 45th and Princeton Avenue, Chicago.

The article continued that while in Chicago King had praised comedian Dick Gregory, active locally in the civil rights movement, but had refused to state whether or not he would support Gregory in his announced intention of being a candidate for the position of Mayor of Chicago. King stated that he intended soon to sit down with Gregory to discuss this matter with him. King had stated that he had the highest respect for Gregory and they had worked together very closely in the past in connection with civil rights activities.

King also had stated, according to this article, that he planned to spend "considerable time" in Chicago after the first of the year, working on projects here to end segregation, with particular emphasis on housing and school problems. King stated that he was "still outraged" over the defacto segregation prevalent in Chicago and the "failure of the Chicago leadership to grapple with the problem of segregation."

At 10:30 a.m., November 20, 1965, [REDACTED] advised that he had learned that King did not make the 8:00 a.m. Northwest Air Lines flight for Atlanta as scheduled, and that he had no knowledge concerning King's activities or plans to depart from Chicago.

[REDACTED] advised the Chicago Office of the FBI at 3:50 p.m., November 20, 1965, that Martin Luther King, Jr., and Reverend Andrew Young had departed Chicago at 2:45 p.m. this date, en route to Atlanta, Georgia, via Northwest Air Lines Flight 710. b7(D)

On November 24, 1965, a source advised that Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr. arrived in Milwaukee, Wisconsin at 5:45 PM on November 23, 1965 from Madison, Wisconsin via Ozark Airlines. He was transported under police escort to facilities prepared for him at the University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee campus, where he had dinner and rested until his speech, which took place at approximately 8:25 PM at the Student Union of the University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee.

According to the source, arrangements for King's appearance at the University were made by the Forum Committee of the University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee, and there were approximately one thousand persons in attendance during the course of King's speech. The speech took place without incident, and King departed from Milwaukee, Wisconsin for Chicago at 10:45 PM, via North Central Airlines, with an ultimate destination of Atlanta, Georgia.

King Olaf V of Norway (back to camera) congratulates Dr. Martin Luther King, winner of the 1964 Nobel Prize for Peace. The American's work for racial harmony has won him world renown.

By Thomas C. Clemens

Thomas C. Clemens is a veteran Washington writer who has followed closely developments in the struggle by Martin Luther King and others for equal rights for the American Negro. He is a graduate of Notre Dame University in Indiana and holds a Master of Arts degree from Georgetown University in Washington, D.C.

FROM THE ABRAHAM LINCOLN monument the multitude swelled out over the green lawns of Washington, as far as the eye could see. Never before had the capital of the United States witnessed such a spectacle. More than 200,000 persons, Negroes and whites, had assembled from nearly every state in the Union—ordinary citizens, leading clergymen, political figures, and heads of national trade unions. Ignoring the blazing August heat, the crowd greeted with cheers and applause the words of a young, dark-skinned preacher who stood before the white marble statue of Lincoln.

"I have a dream," he cried, "that one day this nation will rise up and live out the true meaning of its creed: 'We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal.'

"I have a dream that one day . . . sons of former slaves and the sons of former slave owners will be able to sit down together at the table of brotherhood. . . .

To dramatize Negro demands for full equality, Dr. King joined other civil rights leaders and thousands of persons of both races in 1963 in a massive but orderly "March on Washington."

"I have a dream that my four little children will one day live in a nation where they will not be judged by the color of their skin but by the content of their character. . . .

"We will not be satisfied," the speaker declared, borrowing language from the Bible, "until justice rolls down like water and righteousness like a mighty stream!"

The Rev. Martin Luther King, whose crusade for the civil rights of America's 22 million Negroes had drawn countless white citizens to the cause, was exhorting the nation on this day in 1963 to finish the work which Abraham Lincoln had begun when he freed the black man from slavery.

The "March on Washington" was an affirmation that the Negroes of the United States were resolved that the last barriers of discrimination must come down. The marchers—Negroes and whites, Christians and Jews—carried signs proclaiming their demands: an equal opportunity for all to get any jobs for which they qualified; an end to remaining discrimination against Negroes in housing and in the use of public accommodations; an end to the delays that denied Negro children in some cities their legal right to attend public school with white pupils; and an end to the pretexts and maneuvers that prevented Negroes in the southern states from freely exercising their right to vote.

The massive protest was effective indeed: it focused attention, nationally and internationally, on the loopholes in American civil rights laws already in effect and the need for stronger legislation. The U.S. Congress, by a wide margin, passed such a measure the following year.

The Civil Rights Act of 1964, the most far-reaching law affecting Negroes since Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation of 1863, was a vindication of the efforts of all those Negroes and whites who, throughout American history, had opposed the evil of racial discrimination.

Among all who ever carried the banner of equality, no single person had accomplished more in so short a time than Dr. Martin Luther King. He led a revolution, based not on physical force but moral force—and in so doing touched the conscience of the American people. For his service to the cause of human brotherhood the 35-year-old pastor was awarded the Nobel Prize for Peace in 1964. Gunnar Jahn, chairman of the committee that selected Dr. King in the name of the Parliament of Norway, described him as the “first person in the western world to have shown us that a struggle can be waged without violence.” Hailing the Nobel laureate as an “undaunted champion of peace,” he observed that although Dr. King had not “personally committed himself to the international conflict, his own struggle is a clarion call for all who work for peace.”

President Johnson discusses civil rights with Dr. King. In March, 1965, Mr. Johnson delivered a stirring appeal to Congress on behalf of America's Negroes. Dr. King termed it "one of the most eloquent, unequivocal and passionate pleas for human rights ever made by a President of the United States."

(It was the second time an American Negro had won the peace prize. Dr. Ralph Bunche of the United Nations staff received it in 1950 for his successful mediation of the war between the Arab states and Israel.)

In accepting the Nobel award Dr. King spoke of his “abiding faith in America.” It is this confidence that the United States is rapidly overcoming racial bias which chiefly distinguishes him and his partners in the civil rights leadership from the Negro leaders of his grandfather’s time. Even then, the efforts of Negroes to help themselves made it possible for able, ambitious members of the race to advance, but the process was slow and extremely uneven.

After the turn of the century, a new generation of Negro leaders organized the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) and went to the courts to secure the rights guaranteed by the Constitution to all Americans. Step by step, the Supreme Court of the United States ruled in their favor, narrowing the legal bases of discrimination. More and more jobs were opened to Negroes in northern industries. As Negroes moved to the northern and western states where they encountered no political barriers, they became politically important in those regions of the country.

Climactically, in 1954, the Court flung open the doors to a new era in race relations. It ruled that the long-standing custom in the southern states of keeping Negro and white apart in separate schools must end. This meant not only equal opportunity in education; it also gave the two races a chance to associate with each other as peers from their earliest years.

This epochal decision heartened civil rights leaders. The principles of equal rights and equal opportunity had been affirmed without qualification. There remained, however, a malignant growth of prejudice embodied in long-standing customs and local laws affecting other aspects of daily life. Men like Martin Luther King saw that if the Negro were not to wait still more years for the fulfillment of the Supreme Court's promises, he would have to seek a new means of accelerating progress.

Dr. King found the answer: non-violent resistance to segregation and discrimination. The technique had been used with dramatic success in India by the great Indian spiritual leader, Mohandas Gandhi, but Dr. King was the first person in the United States to apply it to a broad social movement. For a minority to rely on violence, he knew, was futile; moreover, to resort to aggressive action was repugnant to his religious ideals. Non-violent direct action, on the other hand, was not only practicable but in harmony both with Christianity and with Gandhi's satyagraha which, freely translated, is "soul-force."

When he first put this idea into practice, the young pastor was well prepared intellectually for the role of social reformer. The second of three children of a Baptist minister in the southern city of Atlanta, Georgia, he grew up in a home where each day began with family prayers. His childhood was free of poverty but marred by the social distinctions that burdened his race. Prevented by his color from close association with white children and separated from the Negro poor by his relatively comfortable surroundings, he dwelt more and more on the implications of social justice. During the summer months, between sessions at secondary school, he took jobs as a laborer—once in a railway freight company, another year in a mattress factory—in order to get close to the working man and his problems. He saw that Negroes were paid less than whites doing the same kind of work, but he observed that whites were sometimes exploited as well.

The youth decided that following his father's calling offered the best opportunity for registering social protest. A bright student, he entered Morehouse, a college for Negroes in Atlanta, and there read the famous essay "Civil Disobedience" by American philosopher Henry David Thoreau. Writing in 1849, Thoreau had objected to official toleration of slavery in the United States and to a war with Mexico which he thought would result in the expansion of slave territory. Justifying his refusal to pay taxes—an act of defiance for which he was jailed—Thoreau wrote: "It is not desirable to cultivate a respect for the law so much as for the right. The only obligation which I have a right to assume is to do at any time what I think right." Although the youthful Martin Luther King did not know it at the time, Thoreau's essay had had an impact on Gandhi's thinking.

The young man had his first chance to associate with whites on a basis of equality while serving as a member of Atlanta's intercollegiate student council. "The wholesome relations we had in this group," he recalled later, "convinced me that we have many white persons as allies, particularly among the younger generation."

Moving north to Crozer Theological Seminary in Pennsylvania (where he was chosen president of a senior class almost entirely composed of white students), the Negro youth read Kant and Hegel but was most impressed by Gandhi. In 1950 he heard a lecture on Gandhi by Dr. Mordecai Johnson, president of Howard University, a predominantly Negro institution in Washington, D.C. "His message was so profound and electrifying," Dr. King wrote some years later, "that I left the meeting and bought a half-dozen books on Gandhi's life and works."

While earning his doctor of philosophy degree at Boston University, the young minister received attractive offers from two northern churches and three universities. Although he had recently married—his wife was Coretta Scott, a former student at the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston—he declined the northern opportunities and returned to his native South. He had been asked to serve as pastor in an all-Negro Baptist church in Montgomery, Alabama—the city which was to be the first testing ground for non-violent resistance.

Montgomery, capital of Alabama, had a population of about 70,000 whites and 50,000 Negroes in the 1950's. Habit and custom, reinforced by local and state laws, had long ago imposed a rigid pattern of segregation of the races and discrimination against Negroes. One evening in December, 1955, a Negro woman, tired from her day's work, was arrested when she refused to obey a bus driver's order that she give up her seat in the front section of a city bus to a white passenger. Other Negroes came to her defense and organized a boycott of the Montgomery bus system. Although he had not taken part in this decision, Dr. King was called upon to serve as leader of the boycott. He hesitated at first, held back by the thought that to inflict economic damage on the bus company was perhaps un-Christian and unethical. He concluded, however, that since the system of segregated seating on buses—white passengers in front and Negroes in the rear—was evil in itself, resisting the system without force was certainly justified.

Separating the races on public carriers was not confined to Montgomery, but was practiced in many cities, mainly in the southern states. It was sanctioned by a 60-year-old decision of the United States Supreme Court, which held that segregating the races on public transportation violated no one's constitutional rights, as long as equal accommodations were furnished. Only a year before the boycott, however, the Supreme Court had cast doubt on this decision when it ruled out racial segregation in public schools. Dr. King and his followers did not defy the law on bus seating, however; they evaded it by refusing to ride the Montgomery buses.

The boycott dragged on for a year and the bus line lost its main source of income—the Negroes of the city. Negroes organized automobile pools for essential transportation. Expenses were heavy but voluntary contributions soon came not only from local Negroes but from churches, labor unions and civic organizations all over the United States. When the story of the boycott appeared in newspapers overseas, contributions arrived from other countries. Meanwhile, the city authorities used various stratagems to discourage the boycott. They finally arrested Dr. King, alleging that he had violated the speed limit in his own car. He was sent to jail—the first of 16 times he has been put behind bars in his attempts to gain equal rights for Negroes—but was quickly released on bail provided by his friends.

This incident strengthened the 26-year-old pastor's resolve to struggle even harder for his people. The next event proved his capacity to match resolve with restraint. Unknown persons—presumably white extremists—bombed his home. He was away at the time; his wife and first child were in the house but, fortunately, were not injured. A crowd of Dr. King's friends and neighbors formed and it appeared they would turn on the white persons who had arrived on the scene—the Mayor and another city official, several policemen and newspaper reporters. Arriving home, Dr. King stepped before the crowd. "We cannot solve this problem through retaliatory violence," he said. "We must meet violence with non-violence." With that, the crowd gradually dispersed.

The boycott was finally called off after Dr. King and his colleagues, with support from a national Negro organization, obtained a federal court judgment that bus segregation violated the section of the U.S. Constitution giving all citizens equal protection of the laws. The Supreme Court in Washington affirmed the judgment, thereby overruling the old decision that permitted segregated seating.

This was an hour of triumph. Negroes could now board buses in the South and take any empty seat—not merely those in the rear. Dr. King, who had insisted that "our aim must never be to defeat or humiliate the white man, but to win his friendship and understanding," now urged Negroes to refrain from arrogance. "Remember that this is not a victory for Negroes alone, but for all Montgomery and the South," he said.

Dr. King's leadership was recognized all over the United States; within two years of the Montgomery crisis, he received more than 40 awards from organizations devoted to brotherhood and good citizenship. Although he was not yet 30 years old he was one of the most sought-after public speakers in the country.

Despite the efforts to intimidate him, and his anger at the bombing of his home, the young clergyman had not only refrained from giving way to hate but had tried to understand the attitude of the older generation of whites in the South. "The whole cultural tradition under which they have grown—a tradition blighted with more than 250 years of slavery and more than 90 years of segregation—teaches them that the Negroes do not deserve certain things," he wrote after the bus boycott. "When they seek to preserve segregation they are seeking to preserve only what their local folkways have taught them was right."

Dr. King also decided that, to a large extent, Negroes had failed to insist on their rights because they had grown accustomed to discrimination. But this was principally true of older Negroes; the younger generation, better educated, was refusing to conform. They began showing their determination to upset the old patterns early in 1960 with the technique that became known as the "sit-in." In Greensboro, North Carolina, Negro students occupied seats at lunch counters in restaurants and department stores in defiance of local laws. Dr. King, called on for advice, explained the meaning of non-violence. "If any student is knocked from his stool," he said, "he gets up as soon as he can and sits down again. He must not strike back and no one is to come to his defense."

The students complied. Sit-ins spread to more than 150 cities and towns before the end of the year. After the first few months, white students joined Negroes in these moves in some sections of the South. Dr. King himself participated. He was with 50 Negro university students when they sought service in a segregated restaurant in his native Atlanta; he went to jail with them when they were arrested for trespassing.

The sit-ins bewildered the defenders of racial segregation. In many cities they shamed white persons into acknowledging that the custom was unjust. Negroes everywhere applauded the courage of the younger generation.

The real challenge to Dr. King's policy—Christian forbearance coupled with Gandhian peaceful resistance—was still to come. In Birmingham, Alabama, a Negro minister, encouraged by the gains made in Montgomery, had formed an organization to attack segregation through the courts. Neither this method nor a boycott of white merchants had produced the desired results. The Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), an organization of church-affiliated groups which had made Dr. King its president, decided in 1962 to launch a broad campaign against discrimination in the city. If this were successful, Dr. King and his friends believed, the back of segregation might be broken wherever it existed in the nation.

Birmingham, a city of 340,000, showed many signs of progress. It was building an elaborate medical-research center and an imposing art museum and planning to expand its airport and improve its urban highways. In the area of racial justice, however, the city lagged behind. Negroes, who made up 40 percent of the population, were forced to use separate schools, hospitals, churches, parks and restaurants. They were, by and large, denied all but the most menial kinds of work, and were discouraged from exercising their right to vote.

Early in 1963, Dr. King and his fellow leaders began calling mass meetings in the Negro churches, where they asked for volunteers who would be willing to undergo training in non-violent resistance and, if necessary, go to jail for their cause. When the first 250 volunteers had been prepared, they were divided into small groups who entered all-white eating places and sat down at the counters. Thirty-five of the volunteers were arrested in the first three days of the sit-ins. This was merely the beginning. A group of Negroes marched peacefully toward the city hall; 42 were arrested for "parading without a permit." Others entered all-white churches and public libraries. During the first 10 days of such activities more than 400 persons were arrested and at the end of that time most of them were still in jail in Birmingham.

The city government then attempted to end the massive protest by a legal device. It obtained a court order forbidding further demonstrations until the Negroes' right to use such tactics had been argued before a judge. This type of decree had already blocked Negro protests in two other cities and Dr. King decided it was a misuse of the judicial process. For the first time, he defied an order of a federal court. With 50 of his followers he marched down the streets toward the center of Birmingham. All were arrested. Once more Dr. King went to jail.

Then eight white religious leaders in Alabama—Protestant, Catholic and Jewish—called the demonstrations “unwise and untimely.” They suggested that negotiations between white and Negro leaders were preferable to sit-ins, marches and other forms of direct action. They expressed concern that the Negroes had deliberately broken the law.

From his jail cell Dr. King penned a reply. “You are quite right in calling for negotiation,” he wrote. “Indeed, this is the very purpose of direct action. Non-violent direct action seeks to create such a crisis and foster such tension that a community which has constantly refused to negotiate is forced to confront the issue.” He noted that the clergymen had asserted that the Negroes’ actions, while peaceful, could not be justified because they had led to violence. “Isn’t this like condemning a robbed man,” he asked, “because his possession of money precipitated the evil act of robbery?”

Dr. King made it clear that his people were not advocating anarchy. Just laws, he said, must be obeyed; he opposed only unjust laws. “Any law that degrades human personality is unjust,” he wrote. “A law is unjust if it is inflicted on a minority that, as a result of being denied the right to vote, had no part in enacting or devising the law. Who can say that the legislature of Alabama which set up that state’s segregation laws was democratically elected?”

This impassioned message from jail served as prologue for the drama to come. Freed after eight days, on bail provided by sympathizers, he enlisted larger numbers of young people in the campaign. Students, unlike adults, did not run the risk of losing jobs by joining in protest demonstrations. Young men and women from Negro secondary schools and universities in the Birmingham area responded in large numbers to an invitation to attend mass meetings. They were instructed in the technique and purpose of non-violence.

Dr. King addresses citizens in Selma, Alabama, the scene of protests against unjust treatment of Negroes seeking to vote. The demonstrations prompted the federal government to draft improved voting legislation.

Finally, on a day scheduled in advance, they marched through the streets in wave after wave. Hundreds were arrested and jailed; but hundreds more took their places on succeeding days. Within a short time, Birmingham's jails overflowed with more than 2,000 demonstrators, a large proportion of them young people.

The city commissioner of public safety resorted to police methods that aroused the anger of white and Negro alike all over the United States. Some Negro spectators fought back with stones and bottles, but those who followed Dr. King's discipline abstained from violence.

Robert F. Kennedy, then Attorney General of the United States, sent two of his assistants to Alabama to seek a truce. With their help, the Negro leaders arranged a meeting with the business leaders of Birmingham, and agreed to a four-point plan: nondiscrimination in hiring; cooperation in securing the release of persons still in jail; an end to segregation at lunch counters and certain other facilities; and opening of a channel of communication between Negroes and whites, so that further strife might be prevented.

Perhaps with the aim of arousing further violence that would destroy the agreement, someone bombed the home of the Rev. A. D. King, brother of the civil rights leader. The same night, another bomb exploded at the hotel where Martin Luther King had been staying. This latter incident prompted Negroes untrained in his philosophy to attack white policemen. Before the rioting was brought under control, 25 persons had been injured. Dr. King, arriving on the scene with other Negro leaders, climbed atop a parked automobile and addressed the crowd: "We have been taught by our religion that we do not have to return evil for evil. I must appeal to you to refuse to retaliate against any acts of violence."

Opportunities to enjoy the company of his wife and children have been all too rare for the busy civil rights leader.

The Governor of Alabama had called out the state police, who cordoned off the Negro neighborhoods.

Less than 24 hours later, President John F. Kennedy ordered 3,000 federal troops into position near Birmingham. Their presence restored order in the troubled city.

The aftermath of Birmingham was a series of sit-ins and demonstrations in nearly a thousand cities and towns across the country. White persons joined the protests in growing numbers. The March on Washington—black and white together, peaceful, orderly and dignified—was viewed as symbolic of the now broadly based civil rights movement and its philosophy.

On his return to the United States after accepting the Nobel Peace Prize in Norway, Dr. King plunged into another vigorous civil rights campaign. The scene was Selma, Alabama, a city of 30,000 only 80 kilometers from Montgomery, where he had first tested the doctrine of non-violent resistance.

The Negroes of Selma objected to persisting discrimination against members of their race who sought to register to vote. Peaceful demonstrations organized on their behalf by Dr. King were broken up in March, 1965, by Alabama state police. Many of the demonstrators were beaten, and one—a white clergyman from Boston, Massachusetts—died of injuries suffered when he was set upon by a handful of local white men. Shortly before this, a Negro woodcutter had been shot and killed in another Alabama town when police there tried to disperse civil rights demonstrators. From all parts of the United States came demands for an end to such outrages.

President Johnson held several conferences on the Selma situation with Dr. King. He also had a dramatic White House confrontation with the Governor of Alabama and denounced what he termed "the brutality in Selma."

On March 15, the President went before a joint session of the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives to make one of the most moving speeches ever delivered in the halls of Congress. He made the American Negro's cry his own, repeating the words of the song sung by the civil rights workers, "We shall overcome."

In a performance seldom before witnessed, the legislators of both political parties interrupted him 40 times with applause and twice with standing ovations.

Radio and television networks carried his message to the American people as the President declared: "I speak tonight for the dignity of man and the destiny of democracy.

" . . . in Selma, Alabama . . . long-suffering men and women peacefully protested the denial of their rights as Americans. Many were brutally assaulted. One good man—a man of God—was killed

"Rarely, in any time, does an issue lay bare the secret heart of America itself

"The issue of equal rights for American Negroes is such an issue. And should we defeat every enemy, double our wealth, conquer the stars and still be unequal to this issue, then we will have failed as a people and a nation.

"For with a country as with a person, 'what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?'

"There is no Negro problem. There is no southern problem. There is no northern problem. There is only an American problem

"Many of the issues of civil rights are complex and difficult. But about this there can be no argument: Every American citizen must have an equal right to vote. There is no reason which can excuse the denial of that right. There is no duty which weighs more heavily on us than the duty to ensure that right. . . .

"What happened in Selma is part of a far larger movement which reaches into every section and state of America. It is the effort of American Negroes to secure for themselves the full blessings of American life.

"Their cause must be our cause too. It is not just Negroes, but all of us, who must overcome the crippling legacy of bigotry and injustice.

"And we shall overcome"

At the direction of the President, the federal government drafted new legislation which was designed to put an end once and for all to discrimination against citizens seeking to exercise their right to vote.

Shortly thereafter a federal judge ruled that the constitutional right of peaceful assembly required that the civil rights demonstrators in Selma be permitted to carry out their proposal for an 80-kilometer march to Montgomery to dramatize their demand for equal treatment under the nation's laws.

Three thousand Negroes and whites set out from Selma on the first leg of the five-day trek to Montgomery. Then, complying with an order of the court aimed at insuring their safety on the highway, all but 300 disbanded. Protected by state militiamen and U.S. Army troops—all called into service by President Johnson—the marchers completed the journey, camping overnight in tents en route. When they reached Montgomery they were met by more than 25,000 Negroes and whites who had come from all parts of the United States to support the cause of justice and human dignity.

The March on Montgomery, surpassing all previous marches in the South, was a triumphal procession for Dr. King. "Segregation is on its deathbed," he told the massive assembly—but he cautioned his listeners to refrain from arrogance.

Today, Dr. King has no illusions that those working for civil rights are treading an easy, downhill path. (Only a few hours after the March on Montgomery had ended, a white woman who had taken part was shot and killed while driving her car along a road between Selma and the state capital. Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation arrested a group of Alabamans, identifying them as the murderers.) The Civil Rights Act of 1964 gives Negroes the means to secure what the law says they, as citizens, have a right to expect. The act will be bolstered by the new voting legislation. Dr. King seeks to reach further, into those compartments of life that the courts cannot control: into habits, customs and attitudes. Non-violent resistance is a weapon aimed at the human heart. Its effect is not to kill but to soften what it strikes. In the Baptist preacher's own words, it is "a sword that heals."

He feels that the progress of his race is impeded less by those who preach white supremacy than by the "white moderate who is more devoted to 'order' than justice." Negroes who reject his ideas and advocate hatred of the white man give him little concern—he estimates that only 75,000 Negroes in the United States are members of groups rooted in bitterness toward whites.

If everyone does not accept Dr. King's methods, white Americans are at any rate showing a readiness to accept the Negro himself. A national news magazine, which sponsored a recent poll of white persons, found them overwhelmingly in favor of equality in employment, voting, the use of restaurants, opportunity for good housing, and admission to schools. These gateways to equality are ajar even in the South; with the support of enlightened white persons the Negro will open them wider.

"Today," writes Martin Luther King, "the Negro is fighting for a finer America, and he will inevitably win the majority of the nation to his side because our hard-won heritage of freedom is ultimately more powerful than our traditions of cruelty and injustice." ■

A prospective voter gets help from a student.

"There is no Negro problem. There is no southern problem. There is no northern problem. There is only an American problem. And we... as Americans... (must) solve that problem."

—PRESIDENT LYNDON B. JOHNSON

Scenes like this have become commonplace in America's schools since the U.S. Supreme Court outlawed segregation.

Non-Violent Action and World Peace

The Views of Martin Luther King

“Non-violence is not sterile passivity, but a powerful moral force which makes for social transformation. Sooner or later all the people of the world will have to discover a way to live together in peace.... If this is to be achieved, man must evolve for all human conflict a method which rejects revenge, aggression and retaliation. The foundation of such a method is love.

“More and more people . . . have begun to conceive of this powerful ethic as a necessary way of life in a world where the wildly accelerated development of nuclear power has brought into being weapons that can annihilate all humanity. Political agreements are no longer secure enough to safeguard life against a peril of such devastating finality. There must also be a philosophy, acceptable to the people, and stronger than resignation toward sudden death....

“Man . . . has now reached the day when violence toward another human being must become as abhorrent as eating another's flesh. Non-violence, the answer to the Negroes' need, may become the answer to the most desperate need of all humanity.”

Reference is made to Detroit memorandum dated
November 1, 1965, concerning captioned matter.

[REDACTED] b7(D)
advised Doctor Martin Luther King, Jr., has informed school officials that commitments in the South have forced him to cancel a November 22, 1965, speaking engagement at the Ballenger Field House, Flint Junior College, Flint, Michigan. She advised Doctor King postponed his Flint, Michigan, appearance from November 18, 1965, to November 22, 1965, because of his scheduled meeting with President Johnson on November 18, 1965.
She advised the school hoped to schedule an appearance at Flint Junior College by Doctor King sometime in the spring of 1966.

Reference is made to Detroit memorandum dated
November 16, 1965, concerning captioned matter.

[REDACTED] advised that on the evening of November 18, 1965, Martin Luther King, Jr.
spoke at Cobo Hall, Detroit. King, in his speech, commented on racial injustices and the evils of current society such as poverty and war. He said that racial segregation was finished in the United States and that the United States should endorse the war against poverty and should strive for full employment. He also called for world-wide disarmament, stating that the world faced a severe crisis if disarmament were not to be conducted on a world-wide scale. b7(D)

[REDACTED] advised that Martin Luther King, Jr. departed Detroit at 10:10 AM via American Airlines en route to Chicago, Illinois.

Re: Communist Infiltration of the Southern
Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC)
Internal Security - C

A confidential source, who has furnished reliable information in the past, advised on November 21, 1965, that on that date, Clarence Jones, Harry Belafonte, and Andrew Young, (Executive Director of the SCLC), discussed ways of raising funds for the SCLC.

According to the source, Young told Belafonte that they were considering asking Belafonte to organize some kind of tribute for Martin Luther King. Young said, however, that before he could contact Belafonte, Al Duckett and George Lawrence (New York Regional Director of the SCLC) came up with the idea of having an affair for King on his birthday. Young noted that King's birthday is on January 15th, but that the affair would be held on Sunday, the 16th.

Young further commented that he and King were thinking of starting a drive in Chicago and, while there, holding a rally which would serve two purposes, one, fund-raising, and the other, interpreting to the Chicago Committee what the SCLC's movement is all about. He said they were hoping Harry (Belafonte) would assist in this.

The source advised that Jones had told Belafonte, prior to their talk with Young, that a situation had arisen with Sammy Davis, Jr. (the well-known Negro entertainer) inspired by Al Duckett.

The source continued that Belafonte commented that Sammy Davis has committed himself to many things but has backed out of practically all of them. He said that he would check his calendar, and contact Young in a few days. Young stated that he hoped to have it (the affair) in New York. S

Jones remarked that he did not want to commit the movement and prestige of Martin Luther King to the unreliability of Sammy Davis.

Young related that they are very low on money and have been trying to hold on and get "this big thing" going in Chicago. He said another thing they are considering is a professional football Freedom Bowl in Atlanta, which they have been talking to Al Duckett about.

Re Bureau letter to St. Louis 11/3/65, and St. Louis airtel to Bureau 11/5/65.

A summary of information on this matter is as follows:

On October 28, 1965, an anonymous male contacted the Associated Press, Chicago, Illinois, and furnished information concerning a conversation he had heard recently in Chicago, where a threat was made to kill MARTIN LUTHER KING. The anonymous caller stated he is a member of the Ku Klux Klan and is a veteran of the United States Army and United States Navy, serving in two wars. He furnished Army Serial Number RA 905504. The unknown individual also advised he had been an under cover agent for the FBI and Special Intelligence Corps since 1938. He stated he is 44 years old, originally from Virginia, and has been in Chicago since 1947.

On the same evening, an anonymous call was made to the Chicago Office of the FBI, containing the same information indicating a strong likelihood that both calls came from the same individual.

Appropriate letterhead memorandum submitted October 29, 1965, on the threat to KING.

The St. Louis Office was requested to ascertain at the Federal Records Center, the identity of individual involved.

St. Louis advised by reairtel, that they were unable to locate a record bearing Army Serial Number RA 905504, and were unable to determine definitely who this person could have been. They furnished two records as follows:

[REDACTED] 905 504,
who was honorably discharged from the United States Air Force Reserve as a Lieutenant Colonel [REDACTED]. His home address was shown as [REDACTED] California. He was shown as having active duty in the United States Army Air Corps [REDACTED] being honorably relieved from active duty as a Lieutenant Colonel.

[REDACTED] was described as a white male, born [REDACTED] Australia, [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] address at entry into the service, [REDACTED] Sacramento, California, and at release from active duty, [REDACTED] Des Moines, Iowa.

[REDACTED] was shown as being a partner and General Manager [REDACTED] California.

[REDACTED] 905 504,
who entered active duty with the United States Marine Corps on [REDACTED] at Minneapolis, Minnesota, and served until [REDACTED], when he was honorably discharged due to demobilization, [REDACTED]

His address at entry into the service and at discharge was shown as [REDACTED] South Dakota [REDACTED]

CG 157-854

He was described as a white male, born
[REDACTED] South Dakota, [REDACTED]

His latest address [REDACTED]
North Dakota.

The record indicated that [REDACTED] was punished by his commanding officer [REDACTED] for AWOL [REDACTED] and received five days on bread and water.

The record for [REDACTED] failed to list disciplinary action of any sort.

In view of the fact that descriptive information on these two individuals does not appear to coincide with that furnished by anonymous caller, it would appear that they are not one and the same or else the anonymous caller did not furnish truthful information concerning himself. Further, the veracity of the information furnished by anonymous caller is in doubt.

Chicago Indices contain no information on above two individuals and further, no additional information was obtained from Associated Press nor has anonymous caller recontacted the Chicago Office.

In view of instructions set out in referenced Bureau letter to St. Louis, not to set out any leads on the basis of information developed leaving same to the Bureau, Chicago is conducting no further inquiry into this matter UACB.

Dear Sir:

Inclosed herewith is a newspaper clipping by United Press International datelined Nov. 12 from Tyler, Texas regarding some alleged statements made by a negro woman named Mrs. Julia Brown. This woman spoke in the Student Union Building at Texas Western College in El Paso some time ago and made remarks almost identical with those reported at Tyler, Texas. I would like to have some information regarding this woman if your office can furnish it:

Has the Mrs. Julia Brown named in this clipping ever been an undercover agent for the FBI or connected with the FBI in any capacity whatsoever?

She seems to be sponsored by members of the John Birch Society and Young Americans for Freedom and other far right extremists. Just who is financing her speaking lecture tour? Is she financed by H.L.Hunt of Dallas in her speaking tours either directly or indirectly?

Does the FBI have any information whatsoever that Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. is a communist, a communist sympathizer, is known to associate with known communists, has ever attended any communist meeting or been associated in any way with known communist activity or has accepted aid or assistance from known communists in civil rights activities?

Does the FBI indorse or approve the statements that this Mrs. Julia Brown is making on lecture platforms around the country? Does your office have any information that the N.A.A.C.P., CORE, The Southern Christian Leadership Conference, The Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee or any of it's leaders is known to be communist influenced or communist dominated or is aiding the communists in any way whatsoever? Do you know the names of the "Phony leaders who know they are helping the Communists" that Mrs. Julia Brown refers to in her statement? Do you know of any reason why Mrs. Julia Brown specifically referred to Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. by name in her allegations but refrained from giving the names of the other so-called "Phony leaders"?

Any information you can give me in this matter will be appreciated as there are so many bigots and self made experts on civil rights and communism sounding off today both in the newspapers and on the lecture platforms that I have come to doubt the authenticity of over half that I read and hear.

Sincerely,

Fears Crime Increase

FBI Director Rips Civil Disobedience

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said today civil disobedience will increase the nation's crime problem and lead to anarchy.

"Sowing contempt for law and order and promoting pride in law-breaking among the nation's youths can only result in an acceleration of a serious crime problem," the FBI chief said in an editorial message in the bureau's November law enforcement bulletin.

Hoover did not mention any groups or individuals by name. However, civil rights and pacifist groups and opponents of the United States' Viet Nam policy have used civil disobedience as a means of protest.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., a civil rights leader with whom Hoover has clashed publicly, has advocated use of civil disobedience by an oppressed minority faced with laws it considers morally unjust — but only when the group is willing to accept penalties.

Hoover described the doctrine of civil disobedience as the "startling theory that if one does not agree with a law and believes it to be morally unjust, he may disregard it to achieve a particular objective."

In some quarters, Hoover wrote, "it already appears that the social stigma formerly attached to lawbreakers is being replaced by sympathy for their actions and an irrational hostility to law enforcement."

Hoover asked: "Where is the line to be drawn against the snowball effect of civil disobedience? Willfully disobeying misdemeanor statutes today and committing felonies tomorrow is a logical regression from a government of law to an anarchic society."

No matter what the goal of groups who practice civil disobedience, Hoover said, "the fact remains that a peaceful, healthy, orderly society cannot exist, now or ever, if each individual may determine which laws he is going to obey and which he is not."

"Civil disobedience and the unwillingness of many to resolve their differences by established legal means will surely lead to the destruction of the institutions which protect their freedoms.

"It is folly to hold that a Utopia of individual rights will rise from the destruction of respect for law."

Results of information developed while MARTIN LUTHER KING was in NYC during period of 11/11-14/65, are set forth in NY airtels dated 11/15/65, captioned, "COMINFIL SCLC" and "MARTIN LUTHER KING; SM-C."

As the Bureau is aware, complete coverage of MARTIN LUTHER KING was established at the Astor Hotel 11/10/65, where KING had reservations for himself, his party and a conference. He did not arrive in NYC until the afternoon of 11/11/65, and chose to register himself and his party at the New York Hilton Hotel, even though reservations were existent at the Astor Hotel. Contact with the Hilton on 11/10/65, determined that KING and party had no reservations for that evening on the following day.

[Redacted] advised that MARTIN LUTHER KING and party arrived at the Hilton during the late afternoon of 11/11/65, and requested accomodations even though no reservations existed. [Redacted] stated that as a matter of policy, the hotel made accomodations available in view of KING's prominence as a Negro leader. He stated that the hotel will always make available, whenever physically possible, accomodations for KING. As a result of the lack of reservations by KING, his party was placed on various floors and in certain instances in the ~~last~~ desirable rooms. He stated that KING will be able to get accommodations at the hotel even though guests are being turned away and KING has no reservation.

From information previously developed that a meeting of KING and certain of his staff was to take place on 11/12/65, a physical surveillance was initiated at the Hilton Hotel and maintained throughout the day. [REDACTED] furnished information that CLARENCE JONES would not attend the conference as he intended to go to Philadelphia. STANLEY LEVISON was observed in the lobby of the hotel, but his exact destination was not determined. HARRY WACHTEL was not observed at the hotel. b(2) b7(D)

Information developed was incorporated in letterhead memoranda submitted by NY airtels dated 11/15/65, captioned, "COMINFIL SCLC; IS-C" and "MARTIN LUTHER KING; SM-C."

SUBJECT: WHITE HOUSE MEETING ENTITLED
"TO FULFILL THESE RIGHTS"
11/17-18/65
WASHINGTON HILTON HOTEL

b7(c) wcy
b7(c) [unclear]
T3 Paul
T1 [unclear]

Berl Bernhard, former Chairman, Federal Civil Rights Commission, called me three times yesterday, 11/11/65. Bernhard is currently a practicing attorney in Washington, D. C. The President "borrowed" him, according to his statement, for a short period of time in order to organize and administrate the above-captioned meeting.

The meeting entitled "To Fulfill These Rights" is an outgrowth of the President's statements made in a speech approximately one year ago at Howard University. The real purpose, according to Bernhard, is to prevent "rioting" in major metropolitan cities. Bernhard also stated that the meetings are to be held to let the participants freely "sound off" and to let off steam. He told me that the participants would be controversial figures from all walks of life. Martin Luther King is to be a participant. The Americans For Democratic Action (ADA) is to be prominently represented in the form of Joe Rauh, who is to be the head of one of the eight panels at these meetings.

Bernhard stated that there undoubtedly would be great controversial and differences of opinion at the meetings. He stated this was being encouraged by the President inasmuch as it would give everyone a chance to give vent to their feelings.

Bernhard next got to the meat of his conversation. He stated that he thought the FBI should attend these meetings in the form of a "Federal observer." He advised that the Department of Justice was sending approximately eight people. He added that the meetings would not be complete unless the FBI had someone in attendance. He stated that my name had been given to him by White House staff officers and that he hoped the Director would allow me to represent the FBI.

ENCLOSURE

I asked Bernhard point-blank if the so-called "observers" would be allowed to challenge individuals if they made critical or unjustifiable statements concerning the FBI. Bernhard paused for a second and then stated this would not be in keeping with the President's wishes. He once again explained that all participants were to have free expression and that if they were to be challenged this undoubtedly would cause them to shut up. I told Bernhard this was the point, that if they didn't know what they were talking about, or falsely accuse the FBI, they should shut up. Bernhard again told me that challenges to free expression would not be in keeping with what the President wanted at these meetings. I then asked Bernhard what possible service I, or any other representative of the FBI, could render by accepting this invitation. He stated that he personally believed that it would be of some value to "nose around" the participants, to talk with them at their recesses, and to attend a White House reception with them, so that some consensus of opinion could be garnered later on regarding the actual feelings of these people. I told him that it appeared the Department of Justice could do this inasmuch as they would certainly have plenty of people in attendance.

Bernhard again encouraged attendance on the part of the FBI. He stated the President was giving a reception for these people on the night of November 16th and that this would be the opening phase of the meeting.

There is attached a telegram received, obviously from Bernhard, which came to my office first thing this morning. The telegram extends an invitation to attend the so-called reception which will be the opening phase of the meetings.

There are both advantages and disadvantages concerning attendance of these meetings on the part of the FBI. The disadvantages far outweigh the advantages in my opinion. If we are not allowed to stand on the floor and challenge critical and unjustifiable statements which undoubtedly will be made, then there obviously is no need for our attendance. The only advantage would be to obtain the thinking of some of the controversial participants, like Rauh and King, and this type of thinking is already known to us.

ACTION:

It is suggested that I call Bernhard back today and tell him that while the Director is appreciative of the invitation for an FBI representative to attend, it is believed that attendance by the Department of Justice will be sufficient insofar as we are concerned.

Dear Mr. Hoover, MARTIN LUTHER KING, JR

The Cincinnati Enquirer ran a reprint of your article for the November issue of the Law Enforcement Bulletin on their editorial page yesterday, November 14th. It was outstandingly good and it is heart-warming, to say the least, to know that there is at least one person in the top strata of our government who will speak out clearly and concisely and whose thinking is not made fuzzy by vote-getting.

CORRESPONDENCE

PERS. REC. 10

October 20, 1965

Luther King, Jr.
National Association For The Advancement Of Colored People
Atlanta, Georgia

Dear Dr. King,

Just as you are many things to many people, as stated at the outset of your article for EBONY, "The Un-Christian Christian", I'm sure you will agree that the same holds true of anyone in the public eye. Even tho' the publicity racket tries to create a single image for those on their "hit parade" they are still viewed from the gamut of angles. So you are not alone and therein you should find the key to the box of questions you have asked about Christians.

You are an individual and GOD did not bring about the creation of another single individual on this earth exactly the duplicate of Dr. King. GOD creates individuals, not masses. The intent of individuality is all around us if we will but look. No two things of GOD'S creation are exactly alike, no two ants...on up to two giant redwood trees. They are different in some way, just as GOD created them. Groups, yes, but not exactly the same. And on that base of human individuality GOD built a sense of individual responsibility. HE left it to man to exercise that sense of responsibility, to nurture and educate it, or to leave it dormant, at his will. If it were otherwise, GOD would have built in man a fully operative sense of responsibility, such as the mechanism of life itself. Man can develop that sense, as well as all the rest of the senses GOD has so generously bestowed on man, only thru education. And the one, the right, and really the only tried and true method of education is embodied in one single, simple word: EXAMPLE. Example has been the only source of education down thru the ages that accounts for any and all advancement of civilization. Example has and always will be the one true key of hope that man must cling to in the search for GOD'S way. But, as in all things of nature and man, there must be a beginning. So, with education for responsibility, man must start with individual example. If man learns the example of responsibility on an individual basis then the next step up is the group, the town, the state, the nation, the world, ad infinitum. But man cannot set an example of responsibility in a group if he hasn't learned it as an individual, which is the very churches about which you complain so bitterly as being un-christian christians. However, the churches, all of them without exception, the politicians, the dictators, the world leaders down thru the ages, all have tried to level man down to a massive group, with the exception of one, JESUS CHRIST. You, and all others like you, have found an extremely convenient vehicle on which to ride down the primrose path to the publicity pinnacle of man-made glory, and that vehicle is fear. You drive on fear, one of man's main weaknesses, and you make him feel oppressed, down-trodden, and enslaved, and to forget completely his created individual responsibility. You try to teach him that there is an easy way out of his troubles, that all he has to do is join hands with his brethren to form massive groups so that he can lash out and wipe out his oppressor. You teach him that he doesn't have to be individually responsible, that man-made laws will do it for him. And so man's sense of individual responsibility atrophies with his increased dependence on his leaders and their laws. Ultimately, he becomes easy prey to a fate worse than death itself, utter enslavement by the very ones who said they were leading him to freedom.

No, Dr. King, I cannot stand idly by and watch you point the finger of righteousness without asking you to look into the mirror to make sure you are not one of the un-christian christians about which you preach. Are you telling your brother christians, both white and black, to recognize the gift of GOD'S individuality? Are you telling them that their responsibility to themselves, their loved ones, their community, their country, yes, GOD is there in their being but that it does not work automatically, that man must exercise it, educate it, in order to make it work? Are you telling that individual responsibility is at the bottom of the ladder, many rungs below and before civil liberties in that it is not automatic? Does your mirror show a messenger of war rather than peace?

Yours very truly,

Re: Martin Luther King, Jr.; Communist Infiltration of the Southern Leadership Conference (SCLC)

Reference is made to Detroit memorandum dated
November 1, 1965, concerning captioned matter.

Referenced memorandum indicated that Martin Luther King, Jr., would be the principal speaker at a testimonial dinner for Congressman Charles C. Diggs, Jr., which is scheduled to be held on November 18, 1965, at Cobo Hall, Detroit, Michigan. o.c.

[REDACTED], a source who has furnished reliable information in the past advised that Martin Luther King Jr. would arrive at 7:40 PM on November 18, 1965, at Detroit Metropolitan Airport via Northwest Airlines flight 311. According to source, King would proceed directly from the airport to Cobo Hall at which location he would hold a press conference prior to being the principal speaker at the testimonial dinner for Congressman Diggs, Jr.

[REDACTED] corroborated the information furnished by the above-mentioned source and additionally advised that the testimonial dinner for Congressman Diggs, Jr. was scheduled to be held at 8:30 PM at Cobo Hall on November 18, 1965, and that at the conclusion of the dinner the doors to the location where the dinner is being held would be open to the general public in order to afford the general public an opportunity to hear King's speech. [REDACTED] also advised that the testimonial for Diggs was scheduled to be over at 11:00 PM and that no information was available at this time as to whether King contemplated remaining in the Detroit area overnight.

[REDACTED] advised that he received the above information from [REDACTED]

Mr. J. Edgar Hoover
Director, Federal Bureau of Investigation
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Hoover: -

The enclosed is a card which I believe is entirely authentic. But a person, who is an idealistic, intelligent, and sincere so-called "Liberal," does not believe a word of it. Therefore, since there are so very many such people, who will not confirm the proven facts of the conspiracy within our country - and they, unwittingly, "help the cause" of their enemies within and without - it is important that we convince these people of the truth. This friend says that she will believe the message on this card if you will verify it, because she respects you. She has put Martin Luther King on a pedestal - admires him exceedingly, yet will not close her mind, if she can be sure of the truth. If she is convinced, she will tell other "Liberal" friends, and this beginning can start the "ball rolling."

Of course, I realize that, possibly, he does not carry a card as a member of the Communist Party, because he is much more useful to the Commies if he does not. But can you assure her that he is one, nevertheless, and, hence, is a potent danger to our country? She will believe you and it will give her pause for thought and will open up her mind to learn facts about the conspiracy.

I hate to take your valuable time, but this is an important step in our effort to arouse well-meaning but uninformed Liberals, who listen only to those propagandists of the Left. Our enemies leave no stone unturned in their ceaseless effort to destroy us. But those of us, who are well-aware of their machinations, miss so many opportunities to fight for our cause; feeling that it is no use. We are not as utterly dedicated as are they.

Most gratefully,

[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
On November 11, 1965, [REDACTED]
[REDACTED], Missouri, advised representatives of the Federal Bureau of Investigation that the day before, November 10, 1965, at approximately 1:00 p.m., he visited [REDACTED] [REDACTED] St. Louis, Missouri.
He stated he drove there, as he has done frequently in the past, in his pick-up truck. His purpose was to buy used furniture, which he would refinish for resale.

Shortly after 1:00 p.m. he walked to a tavern, which he said is located near [REDACTED] [REDACTED]. He did not recall the name of the tavern but identified it as being located between [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] on the east side of [REDACTED].
He stated he drank a beer and commented to another patron that he was unhappy with the "Negro situation" and the many demonstrations which have been going on. He said he also asserted the country would be better off if the Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King were dead. After making this statement, the other patron, described as a white male, well dressed, in his forties, approximately 5'8" tall, 170 pounds, dark eyes, dark hair, graying at the temples, with a cut scar approximately 1" over his right cheek, took up the conversation. This individual allegedly offered [REDACTED] $5,000 and transportation costs if he would go south to Atlanta, Georgia, and kill Reverend King. [REDACTED] received $50 in cash at the time and he furnished his address to this unidentified male, who said he would meet [REDACTED] at his residence [REDACTED] sometime November 12, 1965, for further planning. He also allegedly said he would then pay him $2,500 and the remainder after King's assassination.

[REDACTED] stated that at approximately 2:20 p.m. on November 11, 1965, this man drove up to his residence in a 1963 or 1964 four-door Buick sedan, greenish-blue in color. He was alone and told [REDACTED] to proceed to Atlanta, Georgia, by late bus that night; that someone, unidentified, would meet him at the bus terminal and tell him where to go and what to do. [REDACTED] was told that his contact would recognize him and say, "The Suwanee is going dry." [REDACTED] was to reply, "No, it has raised a foot." This man then left. [REDACTED] did not get the license number of the vehicle.

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED] stated that he personally has no guns and that in his discussion with the unknown subject he told him he is proficient in the use of a hunting knife. It was agreed tentatively that this would be used as the assassination weapon.

[REDACTED] asserted that he has no intention of proceeding to Atlanta nor does he desire to participate in any assassination of Reverend King. He stated his comments at the St. Louis tavern were general in nature and do not reflect any desire on his part to commit a violent act. He went on to say, however, that should Reverend King come to the [REDACTED], Missouri, area and stir up trouble by demonstrations, he might possibly set up an ambush "and put a rifle slug in him."

[REDACTED] and [REDACTED], Missouri [REDACTED] both stated on November 11, 1965, they have both known [REDACTED] for some time and he has long suffered hallucinations. Both pointed out that six months ago [REDACTED] mother, [REDACTED] Missouri, called the Sheriff's Office and stated her son had lost his mind and she desired that he be picked up. Sheriff [REDACTED] and his men proceeded to [REDACTED] and chased [REDACTED] for approximately four miles. During that time he ran through brambles and his clothes were almost torn from his body. En route he ran through a country church, upsetting everything inside, and then wound up at the family cemetery plot. Here the Sheriff's posse found him, talking to buried relatives as though they were alive.

Following this he was placed in the state mental institution [REDACTED] Missouri, but was soon released.

These officers further said that several months ago [REDACTED] poured gasoline on the outside of his house and announced he was going to kill some members of his family and anyone who tried to stop him. When law enforcement officers arrived, he was spraying the inside of the house with a garden hose to put out an imaginary fire.

Furthermore, according to [REDACTED] within the past month he called [REDACTED] and the local conservation officer, saying he had just killed three deer out of season and they were in his basement. When [REDACTED] and the conservation officer went to his residence, no deer could be found. This was obviously a product of his imagination.

[REDACTED] stated that late in the afternoon of November 11, 1965, he interviewed [REDACTED] wife, as well as neighbors, and they advised him no one had visited the [REDACTED] residence that afternoon. [REDACTED] stated that after [REDACTED] called him and outlined [REDACTED] story of the assassination plot, he decided to take [REDACTED] into protective custody and said he was confining him overnight in the County Jail. He said he would make a decision in the morning as to whether he would return him to [REDACTED] asylum [REDACTED] or to his home. He stated that he understands [REDACTED] has been a patient at [REDACTED] Hospital in St. Louis, Missouri, and also a patient of the Veterans Administration. [REDACTED] asserts he is classified 4F with the local draft board [REDACTED] Missouri.

Both [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] stated they are convinced that the alleged plot against Dr. King was conjured up by [REDACTED]. On the other hand, they feel that he is a potentially dangerous man who could commit an act of violence. [REDACTED] stated that [REDACTED] can throw a hunting knife with unusual ability. On one occasion, when officers went to his home, he threw a hatchet across the room and sank its blade in an adjacent door frame, evidently as a warning.

[REDACTED] further said that [REDACTED] was on welfare but earns money by buying and selling furniture and appliances. He regards [REDACTED] as a burglar and a thief. [REDACTED] drinks to excess, and when he does, beats his wife badly. He pointed out that when he took [REDACTED] into protective custody on November 11, 1965, [REDACTED] did have $50 in $10 bills, plus approximately $28 in $5 and $1 bills and change. When interviewed by Special Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, he insisted that the $50 was the money he had obtained from the unknown subject.

A confidential source, who has furnished reliable information in the past, learned on November 13, 1965, that on that date, Martin Luther King, Jr. told Clarence Jones that he would preach at the Abyssinian Baptist Church in New York City on November 14, 1965. King was annoyed because Adam Clayton Powell, United States Representative from New York and pastor of the Abyssinian Church, refused to have Wyatt (Tee) Walker, former Executive Director of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference) in the pulpit. King wanted Walker in the pulpit as a gesture of reconciliation and King said he tried to get out of giving the anniversary speech at Powell's church, but decided to go through with it because Powell would use it against him if he did not. King said he was not sure Powell would be there, adding that if Powell did not appear he, King, would invite Wyatt.

"The New York Times," November 15, 1965, page 1, contained a photograph of Representative Adam Clayton Powell and Martin Luther King, Jr., taken at a news conference between services at the Abyssinian Baptist Church on November 14, 1965. The caption states "Powell, Denying Rift, Welcomes Dr. King to Harlem." The accompanying article stated that King preached at both services marking the 157th anniversary of the church. It stated further that King at the news conference said he had temporarily curtailed plans for an expansion into the North because he felt it more important to "grapple with the maladministration of justice in the South."

Re: Communist Infiltration of the Southern
Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC)
Internal Security - C

On November 13, 1965, a confidential source, who has furnished reliable information in the past, advised that on that date, Clarence Jones and Martin Luther King, Jr., discussed the financial status of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC). King mentioned that they are $190,000 short and that this situation would not have come about if a safe had not been stolen. He added that they have been spending money they did not have and have been going into their reserve. U

King stated that they want to pull in all the funds they can and, in discussing ways to get big money through a benefit performance, King said he wants one bigger than they had before. King indicated that he wanted this benefit to be held at Madison Square Garden and that he would contact Sammy Davis, Jr., in the hope of having Davis get people such as Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor. U

King and Jones felt that it is possible to get 1,000 people who would pay $100.00 a piece. This also planned to get Saul Mills to handle the affair. U

It was stated that they expect to receive $3,000 from the Abbott House affair (an affair at which King was the guest of honor, held in Westchester County, New York, on October 29, 1965). It also was mentioned that they had received some of their bond money from freedom rider cases and that the Rockefeller money came in (apparently alluding to a gift of $25,000 from Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York).
